With a committed core of 230 members, the Volunteers of SGH are a dedicated, motivated, caring group. We help patients, visitors and staff in a variety of patient care and service areas of our hospital, as well as raising funds for important projects.

That’s why when we heard about the need to replace our aging hospital beds, we knew we had to act. We hope to inspire you with an opportunity to double your donation and spread twice the kindness, comfort and compassion to our patients.

For a limited time, the Volunteers of Stratford General are willing to match every donation to the Stratford General Hospital Foundation’s Bed Replacement Fund dollar for dollar up to $150,000.

No strings or fine print. Our “Matching Gift” offer is hoping to turn $150,000 from our community into a $300,000 gift, enabling our Hospital’s Foundation to purchase 30 new beds at a cost of $10,000 each.

It’s the first step in replacing all 121 standard and 12 specialized beds throughout the hospital and a way to improve the comfort and quality of care for every one of the 7,600-plus patients admitted to Stratford General each year.

At 15 even 20 years old, Stratford’s existing beds are in constant use and rapidly deteriorating. Historically, the hospital bed left much to be desired. But they’ve improved in recent years. Just like changes that cars have undergone, today’s beds are more comfortable and pack more technology “under the hood” than ever before.

Beds are now designed to distribute a patient’s weight more evenly. They’re also made of specially constructed surface materials that are easy to keep clean, designed to regulate a patient’s temperature and “wick away” moisture. This lessens the chance of painful bed sores. “Touch screen” technology can move patients into various positions. This improves comfort and assists patients when getting out of bed. It’s also a plus for caregivers, reducing the incidence of back injuries and helping during the examination and treatment of patients.

Please don’t sleep on it! New and replacement hospital equipment – from the highest of high tech to the basic hospital bed – is not funded by the government. It’s in our hands.

No longer just a place to rest and recuperate, the hospital bed now plays an important role in treating patients, and enabling medical and nursing staff to provide quality, compassionate, “hands on” care. In fact, it might just be the most underrated piece of equipment in the hospital.

“At SGH we’ve come a long way and so have our beds!”

Cheryl Elgie, Chair, Volunteer Council, Volunteers of Stratford General

“Together we’ll help our patients rest a little easier and heal a little faster.”
At first, introducing himself to patients as “Dr. Phil” rubbed him the wrong way. But Dr. Phil Schieldrop soon realized that sharing a first name with the American television personality and psychologist could be an effective ice breaker; a way to open up communication with patients and reduce stress in what can be a very anxious and chaotic setting – the hospital’s emergency room (ER).

But that demanding environment is exactly where Dr. Schieldrop chooses to be. And while he, his colleagues and nurses welcome an occasional slow day – one that’s more relaxed and routine – that’s not what draws most people to work in the ER. Rather it’s the blend of challenge and adrenaline mixed with the awareness that the decisions you make can have a tremendous impact on patients’ lives.

“When a serious case comes in, it’s great to know you have the skills and training, and that there’s a talented team standing behind you. At times things can be very chaotic, and if you don’t enjoy chaos – or at least function well in it – the ER is not the place for you,” he explains.

Dr. Schieldrop has been an active staff member in Stratford General’s ER Department since August of 2003, and co-led the Department with Dr. Miriam Mann before recently taking on sole responsibility as Stratford’s Medical Program Director. But the road to Stratford had a few detours. Born in England, Dr. Schieldrop moved to British Columbia as a child and completed his schooling at the University of British Columbia and UBC’s Faculty of Medicine. He went to Ottawa for his final residency, intending to “scamper back to British Columbia” after a year or two. Then he met his wife Dr. Tamar Tsafnat during residency and plans changed.

The two doctors locummed in a number of locations before settling here. Mitchell seemed like a great place for both to practise family medicine, and Dr. Schieldrop instantly felt at home at Stratford General. “The community was a great place to raise kids…and the hospital was fantastic. If I called a doctor late at night for a consult they would have your back without question. Nowhere else do you find that attitude. It was collegial, it was helpful and the quality was remarkable,” he says.

Of course every job has its challenges and ER waiting times are a recurring concern – a frustration shared by patients, staff and physicians alike. But it’s partly a matter of perspective, says Dr. Schieldrop. Some patients from Kitchener and New Hamburg areas now choose Stratford’s ER because of our shorter wait times; others, accustomed to shorter ER waits in places like St. Marys or Seaforth, are frustrated by wait times in Stratford. “It’s all relative,” he explains.

“Unfortunately, we’re plagued by having one of the highest acuity hospitals – apart from Trauma Centres – in Ontario,” he says. Ironically, that’s partly due to the great family medicine support, good after hours services and the fact most people in Stratford have a family doctor. That means patients arriving at Stratford’s ER tend to be far sicker than in most communities.

Stratford General has taken a number of positive steps to clear the ER backlog and speed waiting times. That includes a strategy where physicians coming on shift will temporarily concentrate on patients with less complex issues who are congesting the ER, helping to speed the flow through the department.

But perhaps the biggest improvement, spearheaded by Dr. Schieldrop, was approval for additional physician hours for the ER. Since July of this year two physicians cover the department during its busiest hours, increasing access to care and further reducing wait times.

“The Ministry looked at our numbers – how many patients we see over 24 hours and how sick those people are, and suddenly we got 7.5 hours daily of extra physician coverage. It’s been phenomenal,” he says.

Dr. Schieldrop’s accomplishments, dedication, skills and personality have not gone unnoticed. In fact, he was recently recognized with The Huron Perth Healthcare Alliance’s (HPHA) first ever Physician Leadership Award of Excellence at the Alliance’s Annual General Meeting. In presenting the award, Chief of Medical Staff Dr. Laurel Moore said, “Dr. Schieldrop embodies all the qualities of a true leader. I consider him to be one of the most outstanding physician role models I have met in my 30 years of medical practice.”

As usual, Dr. Schieldrop is modest about such praise and eager to share it with others. “It’s always nice to be recognized, but the people I work with – physicians, nurses and staff – make it really easy to be effective. I love it here. I know I’ll never find a place I enjoy working as much as this,” he says.

He’s also a strong supporter of the SGH Foundation and the central role community support plays, both in attracting young, talented physicians and in enabling the Emergency Department to provide the best of care. That includes equipment like the bedside ultrasound used to rapidly detect fluid around the heart and internal bleeding; the Tonopen which measures eye pressure and can help quickly diagnose glaucoma, and the mobile fluoroscopy unit used in treating fractures.

“All those extra things you have when you’re in the hospital – the CT…the MRI…the care you receive in places like the operating room – it’s all there because of donor support. We couldn’t provide medicine the way our patients expect without the Foundation,” explains Dr. Schieldrop. “Each donation is immensely appreciated and it goes to front line care for everybody. We’re very thankful to have it.”

A Big Thank You to Young Philanthropist-artist

Reese Dougherty smiles proudly as she and her mom Mary Lou present a big cheque to the Foundation. Inspired to help others, Reese has been busily painting and promoting the sale of her work to raise funds to support cancer patients. Reese’s amazing gift of $146.30 to the Chemotherapy Unit at Stratford General Hospital helps members of our local community by ensuring cancer care closer to home. We can never say thank you enough!

Maternal Child Unit Room Named in Honour of William & Audrey Rutherford

Room naming creates a lasting legacy and wonderful tribute of support received. “The Rutherford family would like to thank their friends that so generously contributed to the Stratford General Hospital in Bill’s memory”. In Case of Emergency

You rush to the Emergency Department with a family member and you realize your cell phone is out of charge and you need to phone family and friends...you didn’t bring your charger. Don’t stress. The Stratford General Hospital Foundation is meeting patient and family needs with a new charging station in the Emergency Department.

At the intersection of care and generosity

The R. Thomas Orr & Family Medical Staff Resource Centre Dedication was an opportunity to open a resource centre that supports our physicians who are the heart & soul of our hospital – and name this newly revitalized space in honour of a special man, who put his heart & soul into helping us raise money for our hospital and – in honour of his family who have grasped that torch and are taking it forward, playing an integral role in our hospital with their generosity of time and support.

Soaring Support from Flying Club
